Hello there!

My name is Danithan and I live in Moab, UT. Here in Moab we are surrounded by red rock canyons which were carved out by the river at some point. Obvi tributaries to the Colorado river are the Paick creek & the mill creek, both of which start in the La Sal mountains. Mill creek runs through left & right hand canyons which are popular hang out & tourism spots.

I love paddle boarding and rafting on the Colorado. Don't worry, only about 300 people per in the river per day. Not me though, usually all the 5 year old tourists do (Have fun drinking water from now on). Its ok though, I'm sure you guys have water filters. One thing water filters CANT fix though, is radioactive waste. Not body waste, but Uranium. Yeah, for some reason people in the 1960s decided to dump all the radioactive waste in a pile right next to the river. It won't bother anyone...will it? Yeah, it will. We are do'g our best to clean it up, and its not bad enough to kill you, but its still pretty bad. We'll clean it up though.

But enough with being a downer, I would love to know about you, but obviously the National Geographic people are going upstream, so go ahead, write a letter to the next K! down stream, tell them how you see your wa.r, and about your life.

Sincerely, Danithan Doge

Dear downstream residents,
My name is Elliot and I live in Moab, Utah. The river is special to us because we use it for river rafting and paddleboarding.
We have lots of cool fish in the river and I like going to a lake that takes us to an epic natural water park with slides and big rocks you can jump off of.
The river is cool because depending on which way you go it will be either warm or cold.

Hello fellow person,

My name is Garryn Shepherd. I live in Moab, Utah. The Colorado river is very important to us because it attracts tourists. We also have a National Park. If tourists didn't come here, we wouldn't have enough jobs to have money. The only bad thing is that tourists destroy our down. They litter and disrespect. Most of them are pretty nice though. My favorite thing is left and right hand to be honest.

Have a good day. Bye

Hello!

I am Kara Harms,

I have not yet seen/visited the Colorado river. I live in Moab. I've recently moved to Moab from South Africa (I don't ride elephants)

From what I've heard, the Colorado river is AWESOME and I believe it. I really want to swim/paddle board/any water sport. I love water. I hope you like water. It is good for drinking. We don't have a fun water park here (well I don't think so). This is a pretty small town. Our river part is kinda dirty.

I'm pretty sure there's a lot of sandstone in it. Random question, do you like cats? I LOVE cats, that really soot to the water again, when the weather is nice, you should go swim.

And, next time you see trash on the floor, why not pick it up? Okay! I have to say bye now.

Bye!

Kara
